TURKEY

REQUALIFYING OLD SPACES FOR NEW USES

Istanbul Technical University's Taskisla faculty of architecture and Istanbul Bahcesehir University will host an international symposium dedicated to revitalising the built environment on 12 – 16 October 2009. Under the general theme of revitalising the built environment, the symposium purposefully breaks with terms such as urban regeneration, housing rehabilitation, upgrading and retrofitting, suggesting 'requalifying' as a means to underline the multi-actor process, the multiple criteria, meanings and values that come into play when existing buildings and public spaces in urban areas are adapted in order to improve the quality of life for residents. This initiative, supported by the Turkish Chamber of Architects, aims to better understand the relationships between new urban dynamics and urban transformation projects within the global restructuring process.

CHILE

OUR PROFESSION'S FUTURE

The College of Architects of Chile will organise its national congress on 23 – 25 October on the theme 21st century architects. Who are we? What do we do? What can we do? Starting from these three questions, Chilean architects will bring into a new perspective their profession, its institutional and professional framework as well as its technical, social and ethical practices. This collective rethinking of how the association functions, its national and local instances, educational and professional training programmes, financial, constructive and technical processes will be used to develop strategies for action and orient the profession toward its future.

BRAZIL

SAO PAULO INTERNATIONAL ARCHITECTURE BIENNIAL

The Sao Paulo branch of the Brazil Institute of Architects announces the 8th Sao Paulo international architecture biennial that will be held from 31 October to 6 December 2009, on the theme Urban Echoes: spaces, connections, originality and sustainability. The objective of this edition is to present a selection of international projects in architecture and urban design that show the potential for great, positive transformation in metropolitan centres and improve the quality of living for their inhabitants. Whether it involves landscape architecture, lighting design, visual communication or urban furniture and art, the projects in Sao Paulo will illustrate changes in cities that host major international cultural or sporting events (Olympic Games, World Fairs, World Cup, etc.), in the perspective of Sao Paulo's plans for hosting the 2014 World Cup.

Bruno Roberto Padovano is the biennial's general curator. An exhibition of projects by students of architecture for urban services in public parks will also be presented. Louise Cox will represent the UIA at this biennial.
