

Health and Safety Update for the Designer

Thursday 19 February 2009

This half day seminar is aimed at the individual. It sets out to identify the hazards and risks to which they may, unknowingly, become subject to, during their day-to-day working practice. It is hoped that with this awareness will benefit them in creating a safer working environment, not just for themselves but those affected by their designs, i.e. contractors, clients and importantly those responsible for maintaining and caring for the finished product.

In the time given we will discuss the changes to legislation which can affect the designer, such as the Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007 and the Regulatory Reform (Fire) Order (RRO) 2007 and where these Acts relate to the CDM Regulations 2007.

The presentation will review and discuss;

- Current Legislation,
- Designers duties,
- The Clients duties,
- The CDM Coordinators Role,
- The Contractors Duties,
- Who is a designer?
- Designers own safety,
- Designer's awareness of safe use of the finished design.

Speaker: Alan Russell.
