

Mission Impossible?

You are a young architect, who has recently returned from fighting in World War Two.

For six long years Britain has been at war. Now peace has been declared, and you've returned home to London. What you see is a very different city to the one you left.

Stop think!

- 1) What does London look like now?
 - How is it different from before the War?

 - How is it the same?

2) What is life like for people living in London?

What's good	What's bad

As an architect you are a very important person. You can help design and build a new Britain. But what do you think would make Britain better?

3) What are the problems that many people have?

4) How can you, as an architect, help them?

5) How can you make sure that this will work?
