We, Presidents of organisations representing architects from across the world, have come together to declare our full agreement with the five principles to strengthen architecture's compact with society and thereby safeguard the future of the profession.

The five principles are as follows:

- Acting in the public interest
- Raising standards to better manage risk
- Improving the diversity of the workforce
- Researching to build a body of knowledge
- Placing the UN Sustainable Development Goals at the heart of practice

We are committed to promoting these principles by:

- Lobbying and influencing governments (national, regional and local)
- Improving standards of education in architectural schools and educating our communities
- Networking with other built environment professions
- Engaging and communicating better with the public
